TORQUE TIPS

GUN CONTROL A formidable enemy of a successful paint job is sloppy gun control. Concentrating on good gun technique will greatly reduce your stress with tricky colors. Try to pay attention to your paint gun's overlap. Make sure your gun's distance from the surface remains consistent.

Apply the base in a nice, medium wet coat with plenty of flash time. Note that wet means wet and is generally controlled using suitable reducers for the job at hand. Wet does not mean heavy. It does not mean pound on the color like you're trying to bury something.
